

Chemical Handling and Operations Over Years, What Has Changed?

D. Drinkwater, Orica Chemnet

The chemical supply industry has changed considerably over the years, How has this effected the water industry?

Is it any better?

How has this effected your operations in the field?

Horror stories that most long term operations staff have of chemical handling over the years, some funny and some very serious.

Leaky bunds, tanks, dodgy road access and sometimes dodgy people.

This paper will explore the reasons why things have changed and has it helped, or has it made life more difficult.

HSNO and OSH who is it and what is it, why do we need it and what has it changed?

The presenter will enlighten the audience with the answers to these and many more questions.

This paper will leave the audience wondering how they them selves fit into the wonderful world of chemical handling and operations